head of "Principals' problems; how to solve them:
The committee on music, composed of Miss Adelaide Davis, chairman; Miss K.
T. Sevard, and Miss A. B. Newmeyer, repoirted that the opinion of most teachers consulted is that the Laurel song book, now used, is too difficult for the pupils to gramp, and phould be used as a supplementary book, with a more simple series of songs as a bisic channel for instruction.

Miss Bevard decisred that a skilled musician was needed to impart musical knowledge, and called upon teachers to take up the question and report, on the problem. Mr. Draper concurred in the opinion of Miss Bevard, and one of the principals, striving to support the committee, suggested that a series of school ones be taught, calling attention to college somes, which prove popular with the students, while the songs taught public school pupils, she declared, are never sung by them at their entertainments or prients. The report was adopted by a unanimous vote.
